IMPORTANT LAWS

The screenshot shows a web browser window with a title bar reading "Tourism Laws in Saudi Arabia" and the URL "localhost/HiddinSaudi/laws.html". The page content is organized into three main sections:

- 1. Visa Requirements

Saudi Arabia offers tourist visas to visitors from a wide range of countries. Travelers can apply for an eVisa, which is available for citizens of 49 countries, or a visa on arrival for certain nationalities. The tourist visa allows visitors to explore the country for up to 90 days per stay. The visa is valid for one year, and multiple entries are allowed during its validity period.

  - Visitors must respect Saudi laws and customs while in the country.
  - Those intending to visit religious sites in Mecca and Medina must be Muslims.
  - The visa excludes certain activities like paid work or business.
- 2. Dress Code

Saudi Arabia has specific rules regarding dress, particularly in public spaces. Both men and women are expected to dress modestly. For women, this typically includes wearing an abaya, a long cloak. However, wearing a headscarf is not mandatory for foreign women, though it may be required in some religious sites.

  - Modest clothing is expected in public places.
  - Men should avoid wearing shorts or sleeveless tops in public.
  - Swimwear is allowed in designated areas like private beaches and pools, but not in public beaches.
- 3. Alcohol and Drugs

Saudi Arabia enforces strict laws regarding alcohol and drug use. The sale, possession, and consumption of alcohol is prohibited, and violations can result in severe penalties. Additionally, Saudi Arabia has a zero-tolerance policy for drug use, and any form of drug trafficking can lead to life imprisonment or even the death penalty.

  - Alcohol is completely banned in public and private places.
